

always allow us to fully care about, care for and care with patients.

Disclosure statement

The authors report no conflicts of interest. The authors alone are responsible for the content and writing of this article.

ORCID

Krishna Parmar  <http://orcid.org/0000-0002-7613-1141>

Emma Louise Kirby  <http://orcid.org/0000-0002-6803-4122>

References

Hearn J, Dewji M, Stocker C, Simons G. 2019. Patient-centered medical education: a proposed definition. Med Teach. DOI:10.1080/0142159X.2019.1597258

Kurtz S, Silverman J, Benson J, Draper J. 2003. Marrying content and process in clinical method teaching: enhancing the Calgary-Cambridge guides. Acad Med. 78:802–809.

Krishna Parmar  and Emma Louise Kirby
School of Medicine, Cardiff University, Cardiff, UK
 parmarkg@cardiff.ac.uk

© 2019 Informa UK Limited, trading as Taylor & Francis Group
<https://doi.org/10.1080/0142159X.2019.1638506>

Continuing the conversation – Free Open Access Meducation (FOAM)

Dear Editor

We have read with interest the article “Social-media-and investigate this exciting method of medical education.

We plan to continue to do so and we very much hope to see more related publications within Medical Teacher in